This is a unique opportunity for gifted young students to form a small class and learn from two prize winning scholars and educators: Dr. Luke Buckley, MA (Hons, 1st. Edinburgh) MSc (Distinction, Oxford) DPhil (Oxford), and Dr. Patrick Verge, BA (Hons, 1st. Liverpool) MA (Distinction, UCL) PhD (KCL), a couple of ambitious lads who went to normal schools and know a thing or two about breaking glass ceilings. With a wealth of experience in disciplines such as English Literature, Philosophy, Anthropology, Criminology, Music Technology, Media Studies, and Education, their aim is not just to help students smash their exams -that's the easy part- but to nourish, nurture and cultivate loamy minds, helping young folk unfurl their leaves and blossom into something entirely unexpected.

For years Luke and Patrick have guided young people towards maximising their potential and realising their goals. Their students have gone on to win full bursaries at the best public schools in the country, ace their GCSE, A-Level, or University exams, and achieve admission to Oxbridge, Russell Group and Ivy League Universities —this is their minimum, the bottom line. The point is not to teach more examinable content, but to inculcate the skills, abilities and aptitudes that make students stand out from the crowd and shine.

Their methods are evidence based and cutting edge. Drawing upon the latest advances in neuroscience, pedagogic practice, and educational theory, they use an applied mixed media approach more enticing for a generation brought up with screens not books. Film, contemporary and classical music, TV, video, art, design, the built world, and print and social media, form the centrepiece of lessons from which are drawn the critical issues and central challenges to tackle, make sense of, and so live in today's increasingly chaotic world.
